DISPATCH FROM SECRETARY STANTON.

Arrival of Admiral Porter on the South of the Red River—The Fleet all Safe—Gen. Banks at Semmesport—Sherman Again in Pursuit of Johnston—The Way the Armies are Being Reinforced and Supplied.

[OFFICIAL.]

WASHINGTON, May 23.

Maj.-Gen. Dix:

Dispatches from Maj.-Gen. CANBY, dated south of the Red River, at midnight, May 14, state that Admiral Porter has just arrived. The remainder of the gunboats will arrive to-night. Gen. Banks will probably reach Semmesport, on the Atchafalaya to-morrow."

A dispatch from Admiral Porter, dated on board the flagship Black Hawk, south of Red River, May 19, states that the portion of the squadron above the falls at Alexandria have been released from their imprisonment safely, owing to the indefatigable exertions of Lieut.-Col. BABCOCK, Acting Engineer of the Nineteenth Army Corps, who proposed and built a dam of six hundred feet across the river at the lower falls, which enabled all the vessels to pass in safety, the back-water of the Mississippi reaching Alexandria, and allowed them to pass over all the shoals and the obstructions planted by the enemy, to a point of safety. Lieut.-Col. BABCOCK will be immediately nominated for promotion, for distinguished and meritorious services.

An unofficial report from Cairo, dated May 23, states that the army and gunboats were all safe at the mouth of the Red River and Semmesport.

Maj.-Gen. SHERMAN, by a dispatch dated 6:30 P. M. last night, reports that he would be ready by the morning to resume his operations. Returned veterans and regiments, he says, have more than replaced all losses and detachments.

We have no official reports more by last telegram from Gen. GRANT or Gen. BUTLER.

Official reports of this department show that within eight days after the great battle of Spottsylvania Court-house, many thousand veteran troops have been forwarded to Gen. GRANT.

The whole army has been amply supplied with all manner of subsistence.

Upward of twenty thousand sick and wounded have been transported from the fields of battle to the Washington hospitals, and placed under surgical care.

Over eight thousand prisoners have been transported from the field to prison depots, and large amounts of artillery and other implements of an active campaign brought away.

Several thousand fresh cavalry horses have been forwarded to the army, and the Grand Army of the Potomac is now fully as strong in numbers and better equipped, supplied and furnished than when the campaign opened.

Several thousand reinforcements have also been forwarded to other armies in the field, and ample supplies to all.

During the same time over fifty thousand volunteers for a hundred days have been mustered into the service, clothed, armed, equipped, and transported to their respective positions.

This statement is due to the chiefs of the army staff and bureau, and their respective corps, to whom the credit belongs.

EDWIN M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

THE FLANK MOVEMENT.

Rapid Night Flank Movement Turned—Our Advance Eighteen Miles South of Spottsylvania on Saturday—Lee Falling Back—Hard Fighting Expected.

From Our Special Correspondent.

GRANT'S HEADQUARTERS, SATURDAY, May 21—7 P. M.

The Army of the Potomac is again on the march towards Richmond. During the night, MEADE's corps, which had held the left of our lines in front of Spottsylvania Court-house, took up its march, marching on the road parallel with the Ny River. Early this morning it reached GUINEA's Station, on the Fredericksburgh and Richmond railroad, twelve miles due south of Fredericksburgh. There it pushed outposts, following the railroad, and to-night finds the head of MEADE's column at Bowling-green, eighteen miles south of Fredericksburgh. The other corps have been busy to-day following the same general line, and the Fifth is now passing the point at which this dispatch is dated. You will observe from these indications that the Commanding General has effected a turning movement on the right flank of Lee, who is now hastily falling back to take up a fresh defensive position. It is expected that the next stand will be on the South Anna River, although he may endeavor to fall on while moving by the flank, yet to be did when established in his lines on the Rapidan.

Penny Bridge, in fact, is the moment found across the Ny, where one of our columns is moving. A mile south by west of Guinea Station is the point of confluence of the Po and Ny Rivers, and at this point the stream is crossed by Guinea's Bridge, which is in our possession. The river south of the junction of the Po and the Ny is called by the inhabitants of the country the "Mattapony," although the Mat and Po, its other two affluents, do not unite it till we reach a point a dozen miles south of this.

Our army is now all gone from the front it has held before Spottsylvania Court-house for the past two weeks and the lines of Spottsylvania pass into history. They are associated with fighting as desperate as was ever made by exhausted foes, and by the greatest valor on the part of both armies. Its woods populous thousands of bodies of brave men, perished in the great cause for which this army struggles and fights and suffers.

You will notice by the map that our present front, while it puts us in a very advantageous position in regard to the enemy, at the same time perfectly covers our communications, which are by way of Fredericksburgh and Acquia Creek. The railroad will soon be open from Acquia Creek to Fredericksburgh, and will doubtless be put in order south of that point as we advance. There are also several available points of water communication by the Rappahannock, as at Fort Royal, &c., which will probably be used.

I should misrepresent the convictions of the soundest brains in this army if I should convey the impression that our progress is to be now only a triumphal march. We shall be met by the most obdurate resistance which skill and courage on the part of the enemy can command. But Gen. GRANT has given you the key-note of the sentiment of this army: we shall go through with this business, "if it takes all Summer to do it."

SWINTON.

GEN. BURNSIDE'S CORPS.

The Ten Days' Struggle—The Roads—The Prisoners—Reinforcements.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

IN CAMP, NY RIVER, Monday, May 16, 1864.

After ten days' fighting, more terrible than the fighting on the Peninsula, at Antietam, or at Gettysburg, we have driven the enemy to the heights lying on the north and northeast of Spottsylvania Court-house. But the struggle has cost us dear. One-third of the army of the Potomac is here in combat, and for a few days before we again delivers battle, our brave and inspirited soldiers must be allowed to rest. Supplies also must be brought up from Bells Plain through Fredericksburgh, before the army can again move.

We have taken 18 guns from the enemy, 5,000 prisoners, and have inflicted on them a loss probably equal to our own. The military observer of the Lieutenant-General, in this campaign at least, seems to be that of a man of untiring energy and of invincible determination. By dint of desperate fighting he intends to cut his way to Richmond.

The spirit of the army is high and confident. During the last three days I have talked constantly, by the roadside, around the camp fires, in the batteries and rifle-pits, in the hospitals, with hundreds of soldiers. "We are sure to win this time," are the words I have always heard. Their severe marching and fighting have not lessened, scanty rations and the pelting rain, have not diminished their assurance of final, complete success.

This is the first clear day since the 11th. Daily rains have made almost impassable our roads of supply, the turnpike and the plank road to Orange Court-house, and the road to Spottsylvania Court-house. No one can form a correct notion of the condition of the highways except from personal observation. Even as I write, by the wooded roadside at headquarters, three horses of six, which are harnessed to an army wagon, are lying on their sides in the mud. The teamster is wading about, trying to unharness them; the roadmaster is helping him by giving contradictory orders, and by very loud and very vigorous cursing. Dead horses and broken down army wagons and ambulances are meets with nearly every mile, as well as occasionally the half-engulphed body of a mule, which, getting cast in the traces, has been suffocated in the mud before he could be rescued. The soil of this portion of Virginia is sand or loam, and the three or four thousand army wagons which compose our supply train cut up the roads and the fields by the roadside whenever rain falls for a few hours. But on the other hand, the soil is porous, and two or three days of pleasant weather will enable our large train to bring up abundant supplies of hard bread, salt pork and salt beef.

At Fredericksburgh I chanced to see two thousand prisoners marching under escort to Belle Plain. They were a motley crowd, scantily dressed, and ununiformed. But I saw nothing in their countenances or in their movements which indicated lack of food in the rebel army. They were as vigorous and healthy in appearance as our own troops. I have made particular inquiries from our soldiers respecting the condition of the rebel prisoners when they were first taken. The result of these inquiries has convinced me that Lee has thus far been able to supply his army with sufficient food.

To-day the Ninth Army Corps lies about four miles from Spottsylvania Court-house. Batteries guard the crests of the ridge on which we lie. From a section of the battery of the Eleventh Massachusetts, whose guns are three-inch Parrotts, taken from us at the first Bull Run battle, and retaken by us at Bristoe Station, I have just looked over a portion of our extended lines. Sharpshooters lie in the edge of the woods which bound the horizon, and which conceal the rebel fortifications. The crack of their rifles is incessant. The rebel riflemen are equally on the alert. But casualties are few. Two wounded men of our own and one wounded man of the rebels, is the result, thus far, of the incessant picket-firing directly in our front. Within easy shelling range of the enemy's batteries, in a dense wood of pines and hemlocks, the headquarters of the Ninth Army Corps have been pitched. We change them, I trust, to-morrow. Not a hundred feet from the shelter-tent of Gen. BURNSIDE, a dozen cattle have been slaughtered for the use of the army. The offal lies festering in the sun, and last night the odor, blown through our camp, was exceedingly offensive.

On the left of our lines, just beyond our rifle-pits and in plain view, lie the bodies of several rebels, who were killed during the great battle of the 12th. One is the body of an officer. His gray coat is ornamented with gold lace, but the badges of his rank have been taken from his coat by our soldiers, as trophies or as mementos.

In the operations of the Ninth Army Corps the Third New-Jersey Cavalry, Col. MORGAN, have taken an arduous part. The duty assigned to this regiment was, and still is, to patrol the country on both sides of the Rapidan, from near the junction with the Rappahannock to Germanna Ford. On the 11th and 12th hourly reports were sent from the patrolling lines to Gen. BURNSIDE. It was the surmise which these reports gave, that no enemy was in his rear, that enabled him to throw his whole force into the battle of the 12th. For the thorough manner in which this regiment did its duty on these days, Gen. BURNSIDE, in the presence of his staff, warmly thanked Col. MORGAN.

The army is cheered to-day with the news that reinforcements, large enough to fully supply our losses, have been landed at Belle Plain. In a few days we shall resume our advance. God give us a complete and final victory!

FROM FREDERICKSBURGH.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FREDERICKSBURGH, Friday, May 20—6 A. M.

Yesterday our forces were massing on the left, and the enemy made a show of massing in the same direction by capturing little columns moving past Spottsylvania Court-house. Toward night a large force, said to be Ewell's whole corps, made a demonstration upon our extreme right, and for a time cut off all communication between the army and Fredericksburgh. Our depot in that vicinity, guarded largely of artillery, acting as infantry, were at first repelled, but upon receiving reinforcements from the Ninth Corps, promptly rallied, and in less than an hour, the enemy was handsomely repulsed. Our loss was heavy, and so was that of the enemy, who made a desperate attempt to cut our communications.

Guerrillas hover on the road between Bells Plain and Fredericksburgh, and also between the latter place and the army. A party attacked some straggling teamsters night before last near Gen. HOOKER's old headquarters, two miles from Falmouth, and beside capturing several horses, shot a teamster, and then cut his throat. The Provost-Marshal of Fredericksburgh is arresting all citizens to-day, upon the supposition that they have furnished the enemy with information which led to the attack last night.

Lists of Casualties—Slaughter of the Rebels.

FREDERICKSBURGH, Saturday, May 21.

Inclosed you will find a pretty full list of men killed and wounded during Thursday evening, 19th, when EWING attempted to flank us on the right. Most of the men who resisted this formidable attack never were in a fight before—artillery-men from the forts about Washington acting as infantry.

Our loss in that fight, which lasted about an hour and a half, will probably reach 1,400. But the enemy were fairly slaughtered. Some persons believe that they had as many killed as our total loss. The line has been advanced one and a half miles.

THE PIRATE FLORIDA.

The rebel steamer Florida sailed on the 14th from Bermuda, after landing an officer who was sick, and stood to the southward. She reported having burned a New-York ship from Calcutta about three weeks previous, and sent her crew to England on a foreign vessel.

From Newbern.

The North Carolina Times of the 21st is received. There is nothing very new in it.

The rebels in Little Washington set fire to the town on the 11th, destroying all but about twenty houses, and robbed all the women and children in the place.

GEN. BUTLER'S ARMY.

THE REBELS ASSUME THE OFFENSIVE.

Our Rifle Pits Seized—Part of Them Retaken.

From Our Own Correspondent.

IN CAMP, BERMUDA HUNDRED, VA., Friday Night, May 20—10 P. M.

BEAUREGARD will not "let me alone." After the fighting last Monday, as you already know, Gen. BUTLER brought his forces down in good order to their present position in the intermediate, a few miles this side of the railroad, but the entire little French movement sharply followed with his efforts. Why could he not have stayed in peaceable possession of Fort Darling and the long line of its outer defenses? We had given them a fair trial and found them too hard a nut to crack while a part of our strength was necessarily expended elsewhere. But, Mr. BEAUREGARD, like all other unfeeling rebs., seems not to care a snap of his finger for our convenience, for even while I am writing this, the collisions of the night is spontaneously broken by the heavy boom and sharp rattling reverberations of artillery as the woods sheltering his misguided cohorts are vigorously shelled. Indeed, there has been very lively fighting all day in front of Gen. GILLMORE's lines, and the enemy, to long ago as yesterday, began to develop himself in force in our front. The old saying that the wicked bird he power may, with great propriety, be applied to this entire command, for not only have the vile enemy us, but likewise the righteous, seem kept in a tense strain of activity in these restless spheres—General down through all the grades to drummer boys—ever since the occupation of this choice spot of Virginia territory.

I have been riding about considerably to-day to learn what I might of the fighting, and have just arrived in camp from Gen. GILLMORE's headquarters, which are probably two miles from here, provided one happens to take the direct road. But unfortunately, these pesky roads are full of blind and intersecting paths, whose shady depths are beguiling to strangers, not versed into, are tempt to lead unwalkber. Like the labyrinth of classic fable. Into one of these I diverged, and here I am at last, pretty thoroughly fatigued by a long and patient effort to thread my own way out. It may interest some to know that I was materially aided in the consummation by a telegraph wire which I happened finally to strike upon in the forest. It was moonlight, and discovering this voiceless messenger of the military gulfport too, whose running between the various headquarters I hope it is not contraband to mention, I followed its guidance gratefully to our encampment.

But enough this hour prologue. I have more important matters to communicate. I have seen to-day the wounds, the mangled forms, the shooting as well as the noble bulletins of heroic war—not of the savage fighting out of which they result. I must give some account.

Long after midnight the enemy began to demonstrate heavily upon that portion of our line held by Gen. AMES, being the Third Division of the Tenth Corps, and also with scarcely less fervorous upon the left of the First Division (Gen. TERRY's) connecting with AMES. The night was moonlight and misty, and altogether favorable for the assault. The rebels, therefore, made a desperate effort to drive back the centre of our line, which they supposed to be the weakest, hoping to outflank in turn. The assault upon our works was gallantly repulsed by both TERRY and AMES, with scarcely any loss whatever to us, but it is said at a severe cost to the enemy. The sudden flashing of artillery and musketry at the dead hour of night, of course, disturbed the encampments everywhere and there was a hasty sending out of mounted orderlies to ascertain its meaning. Lest than half an hour of tumult passed, however, when matters again subsided into stillness. The weary troops, lying in the rifle-pits, again roll themselves snugly in their blankets, and clasping their trusty muskets to their hands, are soon once more asleep after the rude, disturbing episode.

The remainder of the night passed in quietness. Gen. GILLMORE and his chief rode out at daybreak and made such dispositions of his forces as was thought best to meet another expected assault; and the ever watchful and soldierly BUTLER, who knows intuitively precisely what is required for any possible military emergency, and anticipates every movement of the enemy by making the necessary counter preparations to thwart it, had the Eighteenth Corps ready for whatever might occur.

At 9½ o'clock the enemy again made demonstrations in force against the centre of our line, driving in, in some confusion, the pickets, and getting possession of our rifle-pits in front of AMES, about 1,200 yards from our works—making it necessary, also, for Gen. TERRY to withdraw his picket line commencing with AMES' left.

It was absolutely necessary to retake the line of rifle-pits thus unfortunately lost, and to keep possession of which the enemy has obstinately contested. To this end there has been stubborn fighting all day, and upon the front of TERRY the rebels at nightfall had been dislodged, but AMES had not recovered all his line.

Among the incidents of the day, the Thirteenth Indiana were sent out by Gen. AMES to recover the lost position. The enemy met them with a blistering musketry fire, and the loss was very large. Among the officers of this regiment wounded and missing are: Lieut.-Col. WILSON, in the shoulder; Capt. HOWLAND, Company C, mortally; Capt. HOWLAND, Company I, and Lieut. BARNHAM, Company F, missing—having been left on the field between two fires; Lieut. VANCE, Company B. Probably no more noble incident has happened during the war than one of which Sergt. JOHN BEAN, of Company B, this regiment, is the hero. Lieut.-Col. WILSON had fallen wounded on the field. The regiment was retreating hastily under the fire. The wounded officer, in his helplessness, recognized Sergt. BEAN as he passed. He called him: "Carry me off the field, Sergeant," said the Colonel. The noble fellow stopped, regardless of the whizzing balls, and throwing away his musket, gently lifted Col. WILSON upon his back and coolly walked off the field, exposed every step of the way to instant death, never dropping his burden until he had regained the shelter of the intrenchments.

In the afternoon a charge was made upon the rifle-pits by the Ninety-seventh Pennsylvania Regiment, under Maj. PENNYPACKER. It was a deadly move, meet to the boys of the Keystone State. There seems to have been a misapprehension of the order. They were told or expected to advance upon the enemy under shelter of the woods, but instead of doing so, charged madly across an open field between our works and the pits. They were slaughtered like sheep by the concentrated fire of a field battery. Below I give a partial list of the wounded—the officers suffered greatly.

The flag in front of Gen. TERRY was recovered by Col. HOWLAND's brigade, under lead of the 6th and Forty-second New-York, Col. GUION, and the Eighty-ninth New-York, Col. PARSONS. In this affair the rebel Brig.-Gen. WILLIAM S. WALKER, commanding the South Carolina brigade, was captured. He was reconnoitering the left of the enemy's line, when Col. HOWLAND dashed upon him at the head of his brigade. WALKER at first thought our men were his own, but soon discovering his error, put spurs to his horse to get away. A volley brought him down. He received one wound in the left wrist and another shot two of part of his leg. He was quite dazed, but conscious and insolent when Col. HOWLAND approached him. The latter is also brave as Julius Cæsar, and as polite and a gentleman as ever breathed. He said to the angry rebel officer, turned away his wrath completely. A litter was procured, and he was tenderly conveyed to Gen. GILLMORE's headquarters, requesting that no operation should be performed upon him until he was taken out of the range of the shells. He also asked to see Gen. "Baldy" SMITH and Gen. TERRY, having known the former before the war, when he was one of the officers of the old army, and having met Gen. TERRY several times in the progress of the Texas campaign. WALKER commanded the forces in the battle which Gen. O. M. MITCHEL fought near the railroad. Dr. GRAVES, Medical Director of the Tenth Corps, gave my his text to the wounded man, and then I saw him a little while. Hard, painful agony, and no wonder from loss of blood and amputation of his thigh, through necessary, had to be postponed until such time as he should rally. There seems to be little chance of his recovering. He dictated a letter, last night, to Gen. BEAUREGARD, stating the circumstances of his capture, commending his injuries, and expressing the courtesy and kindness he had received, stating that the communication might be sent by flag of truce.

Our losses yesterday were considerable. The enemy, however, suffered incomparably more. Our infantry played heavy with them as they were massed in the woods. The One Hundred and Forty-second New-York and Eighty-ninth New-York both suffered severely. Companies E and G of the former regiment kept two rebel regiments at bay, and lost 30 killed. The Eighty-ninth lost about 150, of which 30 were killed. Maj. H. C. GORDON was wounded twice, but not seriously. Lieut.-Col. SEAMAN says that he was getting fearfully near the Fourth New-Jersey Battery in position.

P. S. Saturday morning, Weldon.—The rebels renewed about an hour since, at the place where the rebels demonstrated yesterday. E. J. W.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE LATE SUICIDE BY SHOOTING.—An inquest was held by Coroner NAUMANN on the body of Wm. MEYNARD, who, on Saturday afternoon last, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head in the Jewish Cemetery, in Eighty-eighth-street. He was standing over the grave of a young sister of the same he committed the fatal act. For the last six [illegible] with the Fourteenth United States Infantry Regiment. He was honorably discharged (medical) last [illegible] three years more. He had been in a depressed state of mind for some time, and became more so on the day of his death. It appears that several of his late associates in the regiment had been killed in one of the late battles under Gen. Burnside. He placed the muzzle of a small revolver to his forehead and discharged it. The bullet lodged in the forehead and in the brain. Death ensued in a short time after. Deceased was 27 years of age and a native of Germany.

VIOLATING OF AN ORDINANCE—ONE OF THE REASONS.—During the excitement of a fire in the house of Madame CORNAZZA'S school, in Eighth-street, on Sunday morning, CHARLES L. TIFFANY, of the house of TIFFANY & Co., was knocked down by the firemen of a Hose Company, ran over by the carriage, and only escaped annihilation by the aid of a chance which sometimes intervenes between life and death. Mr. TIFFANY was walking on the sidewalk at the time of the accident, and the Hose-Company, in thus accosting the sidewalk, was violating a very plain municipal regulation, which will be enforced after a number of valuable citizens shall have had their thoroughfares of its mentioning. The [illegible] illustration was obliged to keep his house on Saturday, but, we are glad to hear, was able to attend to business yesterday.

THE MARY POWELL.—This new and elegant steamer, running between this City and Rondout, leaving of Cortlandt, West Point, Cornwall, Newburgh, New-Hamburgh, Milton and Poughkeepsie, [illegible] for elegance and comfort, has [illegible] the season of 1864 in a [illegible] manner. Her [illegible] demonstration that neither [illegible] of pleasure who daily crowd her decks, [illegible] any one take the Powell some sultry day after [illegible] "[illegible]" [illegible] and there will be a [illegible] in the opinion that the Powell is one of the finest boats on the Hudson, and Johnson one of the best of Captains.

ADVERTISE RAILROAD TICKETOFFICE.—James [illegible] has opened a ticket office in Broad-street, [illegible] the complaint of Mr. CHARLES FREEZE, of [illegible] Pennsylvania, with [illegible] obtained his position on the City [illegible] Ferry, of one pa United States [illegible] with counterfeit [illegible] of other money. FREEZE felt Nixon's hand in his pocket, and, on turning round, the latter jumped from the boat and was closely pursued by the victim. When in Broad-street, Nixon threw something away, which, on examination, proved to be $145, of the stolen money. The remainder was not recovered. Justice Dixon committed the prisoner for examination.

SALE OF COAL FOR THE SANITARY COMMISSION.—The public will not forget the sale at the 7,000 tons of coal, the gift to the Sanitary Commission, which takes place to-day, (Tuesday,) at noon, at the Merchants' Exchange Reading Room, No. 30 Pine-st.

NOTICE TO PERSONS CLAIMING EXEMPTION.—The following has been published in another column, but it will be seen that the Provost-Marshal-General notifies all persons claiming exemption under the amended enrollment act to present their claims immediately to the Board of Enrollment in the District in which they reside.

A BOY DROWNED.—LEWIS MEYERS, a boy aged [illegible] years, whose parents reside at No. 215 Greenwich-street, was drowned at the foot of Harrison-street, North River, on Sunday afternoon. The body was recovered yesterday, and Coroner NAUMANN was notified to hold an inquest.

ARRIVAL OF BLOCKADE-RUNNERS.—Yesterday ninety-four blockade-runners, who arrived from Key West on the steamer Niagara, last Saturday, were committed to the County Jail by Marshal MURRAY.

RECRUITING.—There were forty-nine men enrolled at the City Hall Park recruiting station yesterday, a slight increase over Monday of last week.

Ex-Gov. Price, of New-Jersey, and Major-Gen. Keyes at Leggerbeads—Alleged Conspiracy to Defraud.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Hilton.

Erasmus M. Price vs. Squire P. Dewey, Erasmus D. Keyes, et al.—This was an action brought by the plaintiff, Ex-Governor of New-Jersey, against the defendant, for his share of conspiracy to defraud. The plaintiff alleges that about the year 1851 he was the owner of a large property in the State of California, that being about to leave that State, he appointed the defendant and attorney the defendant, Erasmus D. Keyes (now Major-General of volunteers), then a Captain in the United States army, commanding a fort near where plaintiff's property was situated; that after his departure from the State, the defendant Keyes conspired with the other defendants, and sold their entire property for $125,000, when its actual value was $300,000; that the other defendants were the purchasers of it.

The defendants maintain that the property was transferred; that it was sold for its full value, and that the sale was made to secure the best interests of plaintiff.

Case still on, and will be further noticed.

James T. Brady for plaintiff; Lewis B. Woodruff and Wm. Fullerton for defendants.

Argument in the Case of Cooke, the Bounty Broker—An Alleged Newspaper Conviction.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Leonard, Clerke and Voorhies.

The People vs. James B. Cooke.—This case has become very notorious as the "Bounty Broker Case." The defendant was convicted in the General Sessions of obtaining money by means of false pretences. The indictment charged in effect that Cooke, with intent to defraud one John S. Robinson, did falsely pretend to Robinson that he, Cooke, was a Captain in the Sixth New-York Cavalry, and was soliciting soldiers by authority of the United States Government for his company, to wit, a company in the said cavalry, whereas Cooke was not a Captain in the Sixth New-York Cavalry; and whereas, he, Cooke, was not soliciting soldiers by authority of the United States Government for his company, to wit, a company of cavalry; and whereas, the pretences so made by Cooke to Robinson were in all respects utterly false.

It also appeared that Robinson, believing these pretences, did deliver to Cooke an amount of bounty money, to wit, a sum of $250, in the lawful moneys of the United States, "of the proper moneys of the said Robinson."

During the trial, a question was made of variance in respect to the name; the complainant signing "Robinson" and the Newspaper's clerk, "Robinson;" but the chief-clerk of reporter, the Magistrate, and the Newspaper's clerk, testified to seeing and writing it as it was sounded, and as in the indictment, Rob-in-son. But the Recorder left it to the jury to say whether there was a variance in the name, and the jury found in the negative.

The jury finding the prisoner guilty, the case was taken to the General Term of this court on appeal, and was now argued on the following points by the counsel:

The indictment stated no offence. The alleged false representations were immaterial, and no conviction can lie, sustained even if they were proved. The Recorder should have changed as requested, the reference to the name of the complainant. The Court erred in refusing to charge as requested—that the indictment was for obtaining the money from Robinson, and Robinson never had the money, and never owned it—that defendant could not be convicted.

The prisoner was convicted and on the evidence, Recorder cast on account of public prejudice and in the wrong verdict.

The District-Attorney replied at some length, and decision was reserved.

NEW SKIRT FOR 1864.

A NEW AND GREAT INVENTION IN THE DUPLEX ELLIPTIC OR DOUBLE STEEL SPRING.

J. W. BRADLEY'S PATENTED DUPLEX ELLIPTIC STEEL SPRING SKIRTS.

This invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Springs, so ingeniously braided together and firmly secured, of the finest quality, making the lightest, most elastic flexible and durable spring ever used, combining the power, advantages of the first elasticity and flexibility with the ease, comfortable and graceful adjustment to body which, in fact, and not the at first when in use as easily and quickly as a glove, and adapts itself to every motion of the wearer, as well as the public, especially in crowded assemblies, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, or in any crowded place, from the difficulty of contracting them to occupy a small space. This entirely removes the difficulty, while giving the wearer the usual full and symmetrical form, and is the most graceful and most stylish and pleasant appearance for the street, carriage, promenade or home dress. A lady having once tried the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Spring Skirt, A. Bradley will never afterward willingly dispense with the use of them. They are the best quality in every part, and by far the lightest, most durable, comfortable and economical skirt made. Movements will be supplied as above, and taken in used first-class retail stores in this City and throughout the different States.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

There is no later news from Gen. GRANT than that published yesterday. Cars have commenced running over a portion of the road from Aquia Creek to Fredericksburgh, and the remaining wounded will soon be brought up to Washington.

There is no later official news from Gen. BUTLER, but we learn from our special correspondence that the attack of the rebels upon our intrenched position at Bermuda Hundred was not renewed on Saturday, and that on that day everything was very quiet. The rebel Gen. WALKER captured on Friday was very badly wounded, and would not probably recover.

Gen. SHERMAN resumed his pursuit of JOHNSTON from Kingstown, yesterday morning, having spent two days in resting his forces and replenishing supplies.

Advices from Cairo to 22d inst. mention the arrival of Admiral PORTER'S flagship at Mound City, and report that the entire fleet is out of the Red River. In passing out, the fleet was greatly annoyed by rebel guerrillas. Our forces evacuated Alexandria last week. Fourteen delegates had been elected to represent the State of Louisiana in the Baltimore Convention. Intelligence from Matamoras states that the bad feeling between the native and the French residents had ripened into an actual outbreak. Official dispatches from Admiral PORTER to Secretary STANTON confirm the statement that the fleet had passed out of the Red River.

Gov. SEYMOUR is said to have written a letter to the District Attorney of New-York, directing him to procure indictments against all who were engaged in the seizure of the offices of the World and the Journal of Commerce.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill to prohibit the release of drafted men from the draft by the payment of money. The bill relative to the naval supplies was taken up, and Mr. GRIMES addressed the House for over two hours, in answer to the adverse report made thereon by the Naval Committee. Mr. HALE and Mr. DAVIS also spoke at length on the same subject. The Pacific Railroad Bill was passed as amended, by a vote of 28 ayes against 5 nays.

In the House of Representatives, Mr. DAWES reported a resolution that Messrs. CHANLER, SHEAR, and KITCHEN, whose claims to seats from Virginia have been rejected, be allowed mileage for one session, and monthly pay till the passage of the resolutions in their respective cases. The resolution was amended by striking out Mr. CHANLER'S name, and was adopted as amended. On motion of Mr. COFFROTH it was resolved that the Senate concurring, that both Houses adjourn the session on the 7th of June, at noon.

A resolution was adopted declaring as the sense of the House, that forgetting all past differences it is the duty of Congress to sustain the constitutional authorities of the country in their endeavors to suppress the rebellion. A resolution was offered requesting the President to inform the House whether the suspension of the publication of the World and Journal of Commerce was by order of the Government; the resolution was laid over. Mr. FRANK asked leave to introduce a resolution condemning the action of the Government in the matter of the suspension of the same journals, which was denied. Mr. FRANK asked permission to print the statement proposed by himself in relation to the seal and suppression, which was objected to by Mr. WILSON. A resolution was adopted instructing the Committee of the Judiciary to inquire what legislation was necessary to punish the forgery and publication of official documents. A resolution relative to the Mexican question was passed unanimously. The joint resolution providing that the late law for the temporary increase on duties shall take place on the 30th of April, was passed. The bill relative to the railroad from Lake Superior to Puget Sound was recommitted to the Special Committee. The Appropriation Bill was taken up, and argued at length.

GENERAL NEWS.

Under date of Spottsylvania, May 17, Gen. O. B. WILCOX, of Gen. BURNSIDE'S Corps, telegraphed to Gov. BLAIR, of Michigan: "The Michigan regiments of this Division have been engaged in several skirmishes and three general engagements. They have all done well, some of them gloriously. Their losses, since crossing the Rapidan to this date, have been: Killed, 361; wounded, 1,122; missing, 540; total loss, 1,423. We will please use every measure in your power to hurry up all reinforcements to these regiments. I think we are on the high road to success."

A dispatch to a Toronto paper, dated at Clifton, Canada, May 20, states that the wife of Mr. Geo. Harris, one of the oldest citizens of that place, while labouring under a fit of insanity, left her home about 10 o'clock on the morning of May 10, unknown to the family, and threw herself into the river, a great distance above Table Rock, and was carried over the Falls. An attempt was made to rescue her by parties who happened to be near, but it was unsuccessful. One of the parties seized her shawl, which was left in his hands.

The London Sun of May 19 states that the case of the Confederates charged with piracy came before the Court of Queen's Bench on the day preceding. Mr. EDWARD JAMES had applied for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of these men, and Mr. LUSH showed cause against the rule. After hearing the arguments, the court made the rule absolute.

Confederate prisoners to the number of nearly one thousand arrived in Louisville, from Nashville, on Thursday evening. They were captured by Gen. SHERMAN'S army.

Hon. R. W. VOORHEES, of Indiana, has issued a long address to his constituents, declaring that he will not again be a candidate for reelection to Congress. Personal and not political motives, he says, prompt him to this determination.

The statement that the boiler of the double-ended gunboat Lenape burst while undergoing the cold water test at Newburgh, is authoritatively denied.

Neither Board of the Common Council had a quorum yesterday. The aldermen stood adjourned without day, and the Councilmen are adjourned to 3 o'clock P. M. on Thursday.

In the Court of Sessions, yesterday, the case of LUCMAN, C. TIBBITS, indicted for a felonious assault upon the Janitor of the Corn Exchange Rooms, was continued until Saturday next, on affidavit showing that Mr. WHEATON was too ill to proceed to trial. GIOVANNI LIGHENONIGNI, an Italian, charged with grand larceny, was tried and acquitted. GEORGE WEST was tried and convicted of stealing a gold watch, which he snatched from the pocket of a gentleman in the Bowery. His Honor sentenced him to five years' confinement in the State Prison.

The case of COOKE, the "Bounty Broker," was yesterday argued on appeal at General Term of the Supreme Court, counsel for the prisoner contending that the indictment stated no offence. A singular, if not a forcible point made, was that the prisoner was convicted not on the evidence, but by and on account of public prejudice, and in obedience to newspaper clamor.

At a circuit of the Supreme Court, before Justice FOSTER, a case is on trial between Ex-Gov. PRIME, of New-Jersey, and Maj.-Gen. EGBERT D. KEYES and others, in which the plaintiff charges the defendants with a conspiracy to defraud him of certain property in California in 1861. The case is still on, and will occupy much time in its trial. It is noted in the law column.

The Stock market was generally dull yesterday. The closing prices on the Railways lower than on Saturday. Gold also a fraction lower. Money easy. Government stocks steady.

The Cattle Market at Forty-fourth-street is lightly supplied with bullocks, but little over 2,300 being on sale. Prices continue about the same as last week. At the extravagant figures now ruling for beef cattle, buyers are slow to purchase. Notwithstanding the limited supply yesterday, the market was but moderately active, and sellers were firmer. Beeves were generally selling at 15c.@17c.; extra cattle at 18c., on estimated dressed weights. The receipts of sheep are moderate; prices materially advanced; wool-sheep rating at 12c.@13½c.—a few reported at 13½c. ℔ lb. live-weight; shorn, at 10c.@11c.

Breadstuffs were freely offered and were quiet yesterday, at generally reduced prices. The principal movements in Provisions were in Pork, especially new mess, which was actively dealt in at higher rates. Groceries were quiet. Tallow and Petroleum in good demand. Whisky heavy and drooping. Cotton unsettled. The Freight engagements were moderate.

The Campaign in Georgia.

In the absorbing interest of the campaign in Virginia, the public are almost overlooking a brilliant advance of the Union armies toward a point which last year we should have considered equal in importance to Richmond itself—Atlanta. It is well understood that Gen. SHERMAN began his movement from Chattanooga with a force so imposing and of such excellent fighting quality that nothing in the Southwestern rebel States could be expected to withstand it for a week. The positions held by the different portions of JOHNSTON'S army were exceedingly strong, being often mountain passes where every advantage of nature was on their side. But the great superiority of number with SHERMAN enabled him to make flank movements with as heavy force as he kept in front of the enemy, and he has thus succeeded in turning all their positions in the mountains, and has now reached that part of the uplands of Georgia, where the country is open and rolling, and not so easily defended by small bodies of men.

On Friday he was at Etowah River, within forty-five miles of Atlanta; in a few days he will probably attack the fortified positions which the enemy have been constructing with such care around that important strategic point. He will undoubtedly capture Atlanta, though after severe fighting, and thus hold the most valuable workshops, and the most vital railroad connection in the whole South. Nothing could more effectually cut the Confederacy in two, though the rebels will still have a roundabout connection between Alabama and Virginia, by a more southerly route. To occupy Atlanta would be, in effect, to occupy Georgia, the richest of the rebel States, the want of whose supplies, as has been acknowledged by the Richmond Enquirer, would break up their great armies in Virginia. No other State is materially so important for the Confederacy, and the weakness, as well as the desperation, of the rebel leaders, is shown in nothing more than in their thus giving up Georgia to reinforce the Army of Virginia. With Georgia occupied and raided over by our troops, even a doubtful campaign in Virginia would, by the Autumn, leave Lee's army broken up, through want of supplies.

There is another important element in this Georgia campaign which has not been much considered. All the most valuable negro population of the Confederate States is believed to be now concentrated in Georgia and South Carolina. It is supposed that two millions of slaves have been sent to these two States, to be far from Northern depredations and from all inducements to run away. These must represent 300,000 or 400,000 fighting men. When SHERMAN breaks into these communities, there will be an exodus into his lines from the whole country around, such as has not been seen since the beginning of the war. If he has the arms he can at once equip a vast body of fresh regiments who will be able to do excellent service in guarding his immense lines of communications, leaving his veterans for distant and more important movements.

And here we touch SHERMAN'S real difficulty, which has been hinted at in the Government dispatches, his distance from his bases. With any other General the difficulty would be enormous, for in certain seasons his primary base is Louisville, more than 500 miles away, and his secondary bases are now Nashville and Chattanooga, from which last he is 100 miles distant. But SHERMAN is understood to be one of those who believe that "war should support war." He has possession now of the richest wheat region of the whole South, which has been little plundered or wasted on either side. Between Atlanta and the mountains, he has a country from which he could easily feed his army for months, if he levy his contributions. JOHNSTON, with his usual skill, has slowly retreated, apparently avoiding a decisive battle, which would be his ruin, and reserving his forces to worry and annoy SHERMAN'S lines and cut off his supplies.

What will be SHERMAN'S movements beyond Atlanta, is difficult to divine. With the hot weather approaching and the immense difficulties of his long lines, we doubt whether he does more than to sweep over the State, break up railroads, free slaves and cut off the connection between the east and west of the Confederacy. If, however, JOHNSTON should be beguiled into a battle, and utterly defeated, the whole problem would be different, and we might see movements by SHERMAN'S army, greater than any even he has yet attempted.

The Suspended Journals.

It was very well for the French philosopher to say that "there is no mischance which a clever man may not turn to his advantage;" but there are mischances which no man, with a sense of justice and propriety, would attempt so to convert. If the predicament came from carelessness, and had inflicted injury upon others, only an ignoble nature could seek to make capital of it. A true man will always feel cheap over a blunder that has cost others dear, and, in no circumstances, will make an ado about it for his own profit.

The Journal of Commerce and the World yesterday signalized the resumption of their issues by long-winded tirades against the President for taking them in hand because of their publication of the bogus proclamation. The Journal pitches its dudgeon in a lower key than the other, and affects a certain sort of magnanimity. It says: "It is not we that have been harmed so much as he [the President] who so fiercely struck at us. We are grieved for him. He has withdrawn his grasp, and we are again free. And now for the private wrong done us, we find it in our hearts to forgive him." The World, in a letter to the President, over the signature of its editor, which in itself is contrary to all good taste—and looks like coxcombry—tries to rail and threaten in the "Erciles vein." Through three columns it tears passion to tatters. It screams about the theory that the King can do no wrong, about CHARLES I., about "impeachment, trial, conviction, and judgment," about the shock to the public mind, the amazement of every honest and patriotic citizen, the indignation and alarm of every pure and loyal breast; about the immeasurable infamy of the act; about attempting to crush the organs of free discussion, making free elections impossible, and breaking down all the safeguards of representative government; about judges intimidated by threats or bribed by the allurements of favor; a craven Congress, sitting silent and idly watching the perishing liberties of the people, and launches at the devoted head of the President this terrible fulmination: "Do not imagine, Sir, that the Governor of this State has forgotten to do his duty; do not imagine that the people of this City or State or country have ceased to love their liberties, or do not know how to protect their rights. It would be fatal to a tyrant to commit that error here and now. A free people can at need devise means to teach their Chief Magistrate the same lesson."

"This man was Pickwick—Pickwick the defendant, said Mr. Serjeant Buzfuz, and with a tremendous emphasis smote his table with a mighty sound. All is gloom and silence in the house; even the voice of her child is hushed; his infant sports are discontinued when his mother weeps; his 'alley-tors' and his 'commoneys' are alike neglected; he forgets his long familiar cry of knucks down and of lip chees or odd and even; his hand is out. But Pickwick, gentlemen, Pickwick, the ruthless destroyer of his domestic oasis in the desert of Goswell-street—Pickwick who has choked up the well and thrown ashes on this sward—Pickwick who comes before you to-day with his heartless tomato sauce and warming pans—Pickwick still rears his head with unblushing effrontery, and gazes without a sigh on the ruin he has made. Damages, gentlemen, heavy damages, is the only punishment with which you can visit him; the only recompense you can award to my client. And for these damages she now appeals to an enlightened, a high-minded, a right feeling, a conscientious, a dispassionate, a sympathizing, a contemplative jury of her civilized countrymen."

Well, it is all laughable. We can't say which is the most so—the caudal clemency of the Journal, or the climacteric craze of the World. But, for the credit of the New-York press, we wish that the matter had been met more sensibly. We have freely said, that in our opinion the Administration made a mistake in suspending the two papers. The proceeding, if instituted at all, ought to have been personal only, because the suspension of a newspaper involves great injury to property, and is of itself in the nature of a punishment, whereas punishment should never precede trial. But the pretensions which these two papers set up we will never admit for an instant. Their plea that there is "no newspaper in the country but would have been deceived as we were," is false. The TIMES had that proclamation given it in exactly the same manner as they, and yet was not deceived. It suspected the spuriousness of the production before five lines of it were read, was entirely convinced by the time the reading was completed. It made that assurance doubly sure by sending at once to the telegraph office and ascertaining that nothing of the kind had come through that channel. What was done by the TIMES might have been done by any of our cotemporaries, with competent men in their editorial rooms. The Journal, to meet this, pleads that it had no man in its editorial rooms, and that the foreman of its printing-rooms, as usual, in such cases, gave the copy out without reading it. The plea is an insult to the business habits of this City. No business house could keep public confidence for a day if it should intrust its most important acts to a subordinate who should "go it blind" in that fashion for one minute of the day. The pretence, too, that it was a specious counterfeit that might deceive any one, is absurd. No man in this country writes a more unique and unmistakable style than ABRAHAM LINCOLN. Never was there a coarser and more palpable counterfeit of a bank bill than this counterfeit of one of the President's official documents. The editor, who is supposed to know the marks which make style, stultifies himself by affirming that the style of that document had any resemblance to Mr. LINCOLN'S. A bank teller would be instantly dismissed who should accredit a forgery so clumsy. The publication of that counterfeit was not from accident, but the grossest carelessness. Had we been guilty of it, we should have deemed the Government perfectly right in calling us to personal account for it. An editor is personally responsible for whatever appears in his paper, whether through design or negligence. If he thus accredits and gives currency to a forgery, he ought to answer for it in court. If the forgery was one of a military order, as was here the case, he must expect to be tried by a military court, in accordance with the army regulations, which are a part of the law of the land. In view of the tremendous power the press has for harm, we accept that responsibility as just, and cheerfully abide by it. No right-minded editor will complain of it; least of all at a time when such awful issues are in suspense, which forged proclamations and bulletins may most seriously affect. If there be any portion of the press who spurn this responsibility, we trust that the Government will strictly hold them to it, but by a wiser method than that just employed. The national interests are not to be placed at the mercy of the irresponsible carelessness, or malice, of either editors or any other men. It is an indignity to the press to claim any such immunity in its favor; and the public are now treating such claims with just the contempt they deserve.

THE BOGUS PROCLAMATION.—We have no wish to prolong the controversy as to the responsibility of those newspapers which published the bogus proclamation. But we see it diligently asserted in various quarters, and dwelt on with emphasis in the World and Journal of Commerce, that it was put in type in all the offices to which it was sent, and that accident alone prevented its appearance in some of them.

This is utterly incorrect. It was never put in type in the TIMES Office, nor was it sent into the composing room, nor was there any thought, on the part of the Editor in charge, of giving it insertion. His perusal of the first ten lines was sufficient to awaken suspicion of its character, and a very little inquiry settled the point. So far as this office was concerned "accident" had nothing whatever to do with it. The document was not published, simply because its character was detected. The office is always open—day and night—and whatever is published passes first under the inspection of some person deemed competent to judge of its character. It is not, of course, impossible that he should be deceived: all we mean to say is that we take all precautions possible against the admission of false and injurious matter, and in this instance the non-appearance of the forged proclamation in our columns was due, solely and exclusively, to those precautions.

NO DIFFERENCE AFTER ALL.—The Tribune concedes that there was an "understanding" come to between Gen. MCCLELLAN and Gen. BUCKNER, as to the neutrality of Kentucky, in June, 1861; but it objects, with what seems to us superfluous and slightly absurd tenacity, to having it styled, as Mr. RAYMOND styles it in his book, an "agreement." Very well. This is a matter of very small importance; and we presume that Mr. RAYMOND would have no special objection to substituting the one word for the other in that paragraph, which has developed in the Tribune so much new-born zeal on behalf of Gen. MCCLELLAN. The Tribune says it would have "felt constrained to protest, promptly and peremptorily, [against] any such 'agreement,' had it come to our knowledge at the time." We do not doubt it.

FROM THE SOUTHWEST.

Admiral Porter's Fleet Out of Red River—Alexandria Evacuated by Gen. Banks—Political Movements in Louisiana—A Delegation to the Baltimore Convention Appointed.

CAIRO, Monday, May 23.

Admiral PORTER'S flagship has arrived at Mound City. She reports that the entire fleet is out of the Red River, the "dam" having reached a height on the 13th inst. that enabled them to move.

An extensive conflagration recently occurred at Natchez, consuming several blocks of most princely buildings. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Our forces evacuated Alexandria last week and moved toward Sellsport.

The officers of the steamer Laurel Hill, which had arrived at New-Orleans, state they distinctly heard cannonading from the direction our forces had taken.

Admiral PORTER'S fleet was greatly annoyed in passing out of the Red River by the rebel guerrillas, who lined the banks of the river between Alexandria and Fort de Kassey.

A portion of Alexandria was burning when the Laurel Hill left. This steamer had two hundred sick on board, and, while flying hospital flags, was fired into, ten miles below Alexandria. No injury, however, resulted from the firing. Gen. MCCLERNAND, who was seriously ill, was on board.

At the time the steamer City Belle was captured and burned by the rebels, thirty miles below Alexandria, in the early part of the month, Col. MOER, of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth Ohio, was killed. Many other officers of rank were also killed, and the greater portion of the troops were slaughtered, of whom there were 200 on board.

Fourteen delegates to represent the State of Louisiana in the Baltimore Convention were elected by the State Convention.

The Delta says the action by the convention was harmonious, every member endorsing the general policy, both civil and military, of the Administration. They also approved the military and civil career of Gen. BANKS and the policy inaugurated by Gov. HAHN, as tending to putting down the rebellion and for the restoration of the Union.

The steamship Cassandra, from Boston, had arrived.

Late intelligence from Matamoras represent things as being in a very unsettled state, the bad feeling existing between the native and French residents had ripened to an actual outbreak. Gen. COMONFORT and staff, while riding through the streets, were insulted by the Frenchmen. A general quarrel ensued, weapons were drawn and freely used by both parties. Gen. COMONFORT'S Adjutant-General, during the melée, shot one Frenchman dead, and another was stabbed and subsequently executed on the next day by COMONFORT. Much excitement prevailed, and many of the French residents were leaving the city.

DISPATCH FROM ADMIRAL PORTER.

MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, FLAGSHIP BLACK HAWK, MOORE'S ON THE RED RIVER, VIA CAIRO, May 22.

Hon. G. Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

I have the honor to inform you that the portions of the squadron caught above the Falls, at Alexandria, have been relieved from their unpleasant position, owing to the indefatigable exertions of Lieut.-Col. BAILEY, Acting Engineer of the Nineteenth Army Corps, who proposed and built a true dam of six hundred feet across the river at the lower falls, which enabled all the vessels to pass over in safety, the backwater of the Mississippi raising Alexandria.

Your obedient servant,

DAVID D. PORTER, Rear-Admiral.

THE FORGED PROCLAMATION.

Gov. Seymour Offers the Indictment of all Engaged in the Seizure of the Journal of Commerce and the World.

ALBANY, Sunday, May 22.

Gov. SEYMOUR has written a letter to the District-Attorney of New-York, directing him to procure indictments against all who were engaged in the seizure of the offices of the Journal of Commerce and the New-York World.

Obituary.

DEATH OF LIEUT.-COL. TYLER, SECOND VERMONT VOLUNTEERS.

This gallant officer died yesterday morning at the Metropolitan Hotel in this City, of a wound received at the battle of the Wilderness. Col. TYLER enlisted in his regiment as a private at the beginning of the war, and rose to the rank he held before he was twenty-one years old. He was brave almost to a fault, and actuated by the purest patriotism in the performance of his duty. He leaves a large number of warm friends to mourn his loss. His body was yesterday taken to Brattleboro', Vt., where the last tribute of respect to the gallant soldier's remains will be paid.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 23.

CAPTURE OF GUERRILLAS.

Forty guerrillas were taken at White Oak Church, half way between Fredericksburgh and Belle Plain, to-day. The cars are running from Aquia Creek. The wounded will be speedily brought back.

THE SALARY OF THE U. S. TREASURER.

The House, to-day, in a fit of economy, refused to agree to the Senate proposition to make the salary of Gen. SPINNER, Treasurer of the United States, equal to that of the Sub-Treasurer of New-York.

THE TAX BILL.

The Senate will to-morrow attack the Tax Bill and continue its consideration to the exclusion of other business, till it is passed. The Finance Committee express the hope that it can be disposed of by the 1st of June.

SUITS GROWING OUT OF GOLD SPECULATIONS.

Judge WYLIE, of the District Supreme Court, in his charge to the jury to-day, in a suit against certain brokers, growing out of gold speculations, held that such operations are contrary to public policy, and that the plaintiff in such suits can neither recover profits made on former gold speculations and remaining in the hands of the defendants, or moneys deposited with them as margin or collateral security under contracts for the purchase of gold. Plaintiff's counsel said that he considered the instructions of his Honor taking the case from the jury, by practically confiscating for the use of the defendants the moneys placed in their hands by plaintiff, as profits on or securities for purchases of gold made by defendants, as the plaintiff's brokers. As this was the pioneer decision in America, nullifying such contracts, they meant to take exceptions and carry the case up on appeal.

ONE-YEAR TROOPS—THE COMMUTATION CLAUSE.

The Senate Committee on Military Affairs had a special meeting to-day for the purpose of considering the proposition of Senator WILSON to allow the President to call out volunteers for a less period than three years. The bill before the committee fixes the period at one year. The committee have taken under consideration a proposition to repeal the three hundred dollar exemption clause. The opinion gains strength with many Senators that unless that clause is repealed, the Government will not get in the next draft the requisite number of men.

THE ARKANSAS MEMBERS.

The persons claiming seats in the House from Arkansas, will state to the Election Committee to-morrow that there men cast at their elections in the First District about 5,000 votes, Second District, 3,000, and Third District, 2,500.

CAPTURE OF A REBEL MAIL.

The Government secret police have intercepted a rebel mail going from Richmond to Baltimore. Among the letters that taken were some to important personages in New-York and Philadelphia, and their contents implicate a number of others.

THE TREASURY INVESTIGATION.

The Treasury investigation thus far results in the complete vindication of the Department. The committee is now engaged in charges involving the moral character of the Superintendent of Public Printing and one or two subordinates.

AN EXCEPTION.

CHANDLER, of Norfolk, is made exception to the resolution paying mileage to claimants to seats in the House from various districts in Virginia, for the reason that he was holding another office under the Government while prosecuting his claim.

RECONSTRUCTION.

The whole subject of policy of reconstruction began under the President's sanction. Several rebel States will soon be brought up in both Houses on the question of admitting Senators and Representatives from Arkansas. The House Election Committee will hear claimants to-morrow.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

WINTER DAVIS' resolution calling for the explanations which the French official organ says the Emperor has received from the Government concerning the recent House resolution about French interference in Mexico passed unanimously. It derives its chief significance from the fact that the dates show that any explanation really was offered. It must have been volunteered before the French Government had time to ask for it.

THE NAVAL SQUABBLE.

The irrepressible conflict between Senators GRIMES and HALE on naval matters broke out in the Senate again to-day—GRIMES attacking and HALE defending the course of the navy agents in furnishing supplies. It is worthy of notice that although defending the management in other places, HALE made no allusion to New-York.

THE INDEPENDENT TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The Independent Telegraph Company received a letter from Secretary STANTON this evening, freeing their offices from arrest, and assuring them that they were fully exonerated from any charge of connection with the transmission or publication of the forged proclamation.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Pickering, U.S.N.; Henry Barnard, of Connecticut; James A. Hamilton, of New-York; G. A. Fricks, of Illinois; John W. Harris, of Missouri, and C. D. Robinson, of Wisconsin.

EVACUATION OF THE RAPPAHANNOCK.

It is reported that the gunboats of the Potomac flotilla have removed all the obstructions in the Rappahannock River.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 23.

IMPORTANT TO DRAFTED MEN—THE COMMUTATION CLAUSE.

Mr. MORGAN, of New-York, (Union,) introduced a bill to prohibit the release of drafted men from draft by the payment of money, viz.: "That so much of the act entitled 'An act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes,' approved March 3, 1863, and acts amendatory thereof, as authorizes the discharge of any person from military service, by reason of the payment of money for the procuration of a substitute or otherwise, be and the same is hereby repealed—provided that persons now entitled to be drafted shall not be exempted by virtue of the provisions of the military laws repealed by persons actually furnishing substitutes."

NAVAL SUPPLIES.

On motion of Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, (Union,) the bill in relation to the naval supplies was taken up, and he addressed the Senate for over one hour in answer to the adverse report made thereon by the Naval Committee. He gave a history of the manner of obtaining naval supplies since the organization of the navy to show that under navy agents, who originally were not legally authorized officers, a system had grown up by collusion with contractors and unscrupulous workmen, and that the system proposed by his bill would remedy these abuses. He defended the Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks for his efforts in detecting the defects of the old system. He said that the subordinates, and not the department were in fault. He analyzed certain contracts heretofore made under bids for supplies, showing, as an example, instances where Scotch iron has been bid for at one dollar per ton and American iron at twenty and thirty-six dollars per ton, and of the large amount advertised of the former only nine or ten tons were delivered, while of the latter double or treble the amount would be furnished and received. The low figure at which Scotch iron was furnished, the contractors knowing by collusion, beforehand what amount would be required, were thus enabled to secure the contract against honest men by reason of their aggregate bid under the contract system being less. He contended that these things showed collusion between contractors and the employes of the Government. He mentioned among these contractors Burns, Rossman & Co., of Boston, who had since 1861, furnished to the amount of $1,810,000; Sherman & Co., of New-York, to about a similar sum, and another firm in New-Hampshire to the amount of $1,200,000; also, Jessup & Savage, of Washington, items in the letters bill to the Navy-yard amounting in the aggregate to $6,000, the being the lowest bidder of those whom Mr. Guthrie presumed to be merely his confederates. The price of the articles furnished were double their value; as for instance, axes at $1.50, the market price of which was seventy-five cents; and many other articles in proportion. Mr. GRIMES showed other cases from their books, that SHERMAN & Co., now under contract with them in September last, they had furnished boiler sheets costing $1,600 at $6,750, and 45 sheets of copper, costing $120 at $6,000 $0, leather costing $1,000 at $6,000, &c., &c.

Mr. GRIMES continued at length the necessity of his bill to remedy these abuses. He said it would provide that these masters of supply would be compelled to regular officers of the navy instead of temporary political appointees, and prescribed such severe punishment and penalties as would diminish to a large extent the corruptions and frauds which were now practiced.

Mr. HALE, of New-Hampshire, (Union,) agreed with the Senator from Iowa entirely that the frauds and gross outrages perpetrated upon the Navy Department were enormous; but the difference between him and the Senator as to the responsibility was great. He had no idea that the sweeping charges made by the Senator against navy agents and workingmen, whom he proposed by one fell blow to sweep from the navy, were true. This assault on the navy agents and master workmen and mechanics was solely because they had in many instances protected the Government from the attempts at fraud on the part of those who were partners of the heads of the bureau in the Navy Department, who sought to be enriched at the public expense. He asserted that these navy agents had, while endeavoring to protect the Government from fraud on the part of inventors of the heads of bureaus, incurred their displeasure. One case in point was the supplying of the shaft of the steamer Cambridge, at the Charlestown Navy-Yard, when the Navy Agent refused to pay the enormous price of seventy cents per pound when everybody knew it could be purchased for five. Mr. HALE, in defending the firm of SHERMAN, SHERMAN & Co., said that they had been among the first to expose the manner in which frauds were perpetrated upon the Government. The Committee of Naval Affairs, in discharging their duty, had come to the conclusion, after partial investigation, that this bill, though containing many excellent features, was, upon the whole, at this time novelty and inexpedient. They regarded it as an endeavor to cut off from the public service, and pass sentence of condemnation upon those who are the most faithful officers in the United States service, though they were not specialized gentlemen. Helped as high regard for naval officers as the Senator. He thought them, as a class, as honest and upright as any other officers; but he was opposed to the wholesale onslaught on the mechanics of the country, who had shed so much blood and performed so much labor in defence of the national life. He considered the bill itself a standing libel against the country and the heavy sums of late. He hoped the Senator would press his investigations until every rogue, and every one who connived at fraud and corruption, would be brought to condign punishment; but, after all, he would find that the guilty culprits were elsewhere.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, (Union,) wished to say a word in defence of a citizen of Massachusetts, who had been assailed.

Mr. CONNESS, of California, (Union,) and Mr. DAVIS, both objected.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD BILL.

The consideration of the Pacific Railroad Bill was then resumed, and Mr. DOOLITTLE, after a brief reference to the pending amendment fixing the route of the road through Kansas, resumed in the usual supply subject.

Mr. CONNESS asked what they had to do with the railroad.

Mr. DOOLITTLE said the gentleman was out of order interrupting him, and went on to say that he had been engaged for weeks as a member of the Naval Committee, in connection with the Senator from New-Hampshire, on the subject of fraud and corruption in the Navy Department. He had listened to his speech to-day, and yet he had not heard him mention a single man associated in these outrageous transactions. Why did not the Senator name one man? Because, as he (Mr. DOOLITTLE) undertook emphatically to say, there was no man in the Navy Department, no head of a bureau, no clerk who was guilty of fraud or corruption, as he would see when the evidence was presented.

The other amendments of the Pacific Railroad Bill were discussed by various Senators.

The bill, as amended, was then passed by a vote of 28 ayes against 5 nays. It goes to the House.

At 5:40 o'clock the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 23.

MILEAGE FOR UNSEATED MEMBERS.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, (Union,) from the Committee on Elections, reported a resolution that Messrs. CHANDLER, SHEAR, and KITCHEN, whose claims to seats from Virginia have been rejected, be allowed mileage for one session, and monthly pay till the passage of the resolutions in their respective cases. Mr. DAWES said that Mr. CHANDLER is District-Attorney in the Eastern District of Virginia, but receives no salary, his compensation being paid in fees amounting to probably $2,500 per annum.

Mr. CHANDLER's name was stricken out. The resolution, as thus amended, was adopted by a majority of three.

On motion of Mr. COFFROTH, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) it was resolved that the Senate concurring both Houses adjourn the session on the 7th of June at noon.

PATRIOTIC LEGISLATION.

Mr. KINNEY, Delegate from Utah, offered a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, declaring as the sense of this House that the present crisis in this unnatural and unjustifiable rebellion calls loudly on Congress for united and patriotic legislation; that the self-sacrificing services of our soldiers, unsurpassed in ancient or modern warfare, should be sustained in the field, that we confide in our leaders, and, for getting all past differences, it is the duty of Congress to provide the means of speedily crushing the country in their endeavors to suppress the rebellion.

THE SUSPENSION OF THE NEW-YORK JOURNALS.

Mr. GRINNELL, of Iowa, (Union,) offered a resolution, requesting the President to inform the House whether, by order of the Government, the publication of the World and Journal of Commerce, of New-York, was suspended, and if so, on what order and proceeding the order emanated. An objection being made, the resolution lies over.

THE FORGERY OF OFFICIAL DOCUMENTS.

On motion of Mr. ARNOLD, of Illinois, (Union,) a resolution was introduced, which was adopted, instructing the Committee of the Judiciary to inquire whether and what legislation is necessary to punish the forgery and publication of official documents, and also what legislation is necessary to punish those who, through the press, or otherwise, give information, aid and comfort to the rebels.

THE MEETINGS OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. HUBBARD, of Iowa, (Union,) offered a resolution providing that the House meet daily at 11 instead of 12 o'clock.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, (Union,) objected, saying that we have too much time already.

On motion of Mr. PENDLETON, of Ohio, (Dem.,) the resolution was tabled—91 against 32.

THE SUPPRESSED NEWSPAPERS AGAIN.

Mr. PRUYN, of New-York, (Dem.,) asked leave, on behalf of his friends of the New-York Delegation, to offer a resolution. He would, with the kind permission of the House, like to say a few words in explanation of the reasons which induced them to request action by this body.

The resolution was then read for the information of the House, and is as follows:

Resolved, That the conduct of the Executive authority of the Government in closing the offices and suppressing the publication of the World and Journal of Commerce, newspapers in the City of New-York, under the circumstances which have been placed before the public, was an act unwarranted in itself, dangerous to the cause of the Union, in violation of the Constitution, and subversive of the principles of civil liberty, and as such is hereby censured by this House.

Objection being made, Mr. PRUYN moved a suspension of the rules, in order that he might introduce the resolution, but the question was decided in the negative by the following vote: Yeas 56, nays 57.

state to hereby repealed—provided that persons now entitled to be drafted shall not be exempted by virtue of the provisions of the military laws repealed by persons actually furnishing substitutes."

NAVAL SUPPLIES.

On motion of Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, (Union,) the bill in relation to the naval supplies was taken up, and he addressed the Senate for over one hour in answer to the adverse report made thereon by the Naval Committee. He gave a history of the manner of obtaining naval supplies since the organization of the navy to show that under navy agents, who originally were not legally authorized officers, a system had grown up by collusion with contractors and unscrupulous workmen, and that the system proposed by his bill would remedy these abuses. He defended the Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks for his efforts in detecting the defects of the old system. He said that the subordinates, and not the department were in fault. He analyzed certain contracts heretofore made under bids for supplies, showing, as an example, instances where Scotch iron has been bid for at one dollar per ton and American iron at twenty and thirty-six dollars per ton, and of the large amount advertised of the former only nine or ten tons were delivered, while of the latter double or treble the amount would be furnished and received

THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

Whereas, The following announcement appeared in the Mexican Government official organ, namely:

"The Emperor's Government has received from that of the United States satisfactory evidence of the sense and bearing of the resolution of the House of Representatives of Washington relating to Mexico, and it is known, besides, that the United States do not entertain the intention of the question, which in any case, the Emperor would not have mentioned," therefore,

Resolved, That the President communicate to this House, if not inconsistent with the public interests, any information given by the Government of the United States to French ministers touching such sense of the resolution relative to Mexico, which unanimously passed this House on the 6th of April, 1864.

The resolution was passed almost unanimously, under a suspension of the rules.

THE LAST INCREASE OF TARIFF.

Mr. GROVER, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) reported back joint explanatory resolutions, which was passed, providing that the last law for the temporary increase of tonnage and imports shall take effect on the 10th instead of the 20th ad April. All duties improperly paid to be refunded.

THE RECENT INCREASE OF THE TARIFF.

Mr. GROVER, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a joint resolution supplementary of the joint resolution to suspend temporarily the duties on imports, approved April 20, as follows:

Whereas, The joint resolution of Congress entitled "A joint resolution to suspend temporarily the duties on imports," was approved by the President on the 20th of April, making it operative upon 12 o'clock P. M., but was not promulgated until the day following, to wit, April 21, and

Resolved, That the resolution shall not be deemed to have taken effect until the morning of April 21, 1864, and the said resolution shall not be construed to include the goods in public stores or bonded warehouses or bonded for warehousing or transportation prior to the said time of April 21, and any duties which may have been exacted and received contrary to the provisions of said resolution shall be refunded.

Mr. BARRETT, of New-York, (Dem.,) said he was glad this resolution had been reported as a matter of justice. The necessity for the explanatory resolution showed the hurried mode of legislation. Something done on gas Monday had to be corrected on another Monday.

The joint resolution was passed under the operation of the previous question.

THE SUPPRESSED JOURNALS ONCE MORE.

Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, (Dem.,) asked unanimous consent that the resolution proposed by himself on behalf of the opposition members from New-York [illegible] in relation to the suppression of the World and Journal of Commerce.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, (Union,) objected.

Mr. GROVER, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) said he had no objection to publishing the statement in the New-York papers.

Mr. ROSSER, of New-York, (Dem.,) remarked that the delay in the newspapers might be suppressed.

[illegible] FROM LAKE SUPERIOR TO PUGETS SOUND.

Mr. GROVER, on leave, reported a bill to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Lake Superior to Pugets Sound by the Northern route.

The bill was ordered to be printed, and recommitted to the Special Committee.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

During the proceedings

Mr. HERMAN, of Indiana, (Dem.,) opposed the amendment increasing the salary of the Treasurer of the United States to $6,000 per annum.

Mr. KASSON, of Iowa, (Union,) said the gentleman's remarks were personal—not calculated for effect in this House, but to be read elsewhere.

Mr. HERMAN replied that if the gentleman was of that opinion, he was certainly laboring under a great delusion.

Mr. WILSON, of New-York, (Dem.,) sent up to be read an extract denouncing the Fremont campaign fund Gen. Grant received.

Mr. KELLEY, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) wished to know what book it was. Extracts had heretofore been read from it which were replete with falsehood and slanders of patriotic men. He asked for the name of the book.

Mr. COX, of Ohio, (Dem.,) in reply, said it was the "Logic of History," containing 300 political texts, and he then read from it some remarks of that gentleman about the war, and commented upon them in bitterness.

The amendment to increase the United States Treasurer from $4,000 to $6,000, was rejected—57 against 57.

A long list of amendments agreed to were then approved, providing $5,000 for the salary of two additional Appraisers at the port of New-York.

At a quarter past 4 the House adjourned.

Decay of the Teeth

Arises from various causes, but principally it may be attributed to early neglect. Ill health, or the indiscriminate use of tooth powders containing mineral or deleterious ingredients which give a momentary whiteness to the teeth, while they corrode the enamel. The extreme prevalence of this fatal malady is too well known to need comment. To this day, indeed, is principally to be attributed the long dominion of disease which succumbed in the greatest discovery ever given to the world for the preservation of the teeth and gums, and purifying the breath, "Fragrant Sozodont."

The Wounded—The Fight of Friday.

FORTRESS MONROE, Saturday, May 21.

Three hundred wounded men were sent from the McClellan Hospital, to-day, to Philadelphia.

The weather is as yet very favorable for the patients in hospital, the most of them are doing well.

Genl. Wheaton has left his brigade.

Gen. Devens is at the Chesapeake Hospital, sick.

Yesterday were the pickets on our left that were the Point of Rocks on the Appomattox, were driven in by the rebels and quite an engagement soon followed. As soon as the pickets retreated our Reserve Corps, two of our batteries opened on the enemy with wonderful force, and they were so taken by surprise that they just scampered in both killed and wounded.

The enemy got the worst of the skirmish and retired.

Picket skirmishing is going on much of the time along our lines.

There is heavy skirmishing this morning. Particulars are not yet received.

Attack on Fort Powhatan—Repulse of the Rebels.

FORTRESS MONROE, Monday, May 23.

A letter from Fortress Monroe, of the 21st, states that the rebel cavalry had attacked Fort Powhatan, on the James River, making three charges, which were all repulsed, with a heavy rebel loss and disorganization, and but slight loss on our side.
